Photography Categories

	Landscape Photography is the art of capturing natural locations. Landscape photos feature natural landmarks, stunning vistas, and interesting locations. This photographic discipline displays Mother Nature's glory in its finest form. The image should transport the viewer to that location. Good landscape photography can teleport you to anywhere in the world.		Wildlife Photography focuses on animals in their natural habitat. You'll be documenting various forms of wildlife in their natural habitat. As well as requiring photography skills, wildlife photographers may need field craft skills as some animals and birds are difficult to approach and thus a knowledge of the animals and birds' behaviour is needed in order to achieve the best image.
	Sports/Action Photography is one of the difficult types of photography. It requires practice along with the various equipment.		Architectural Photography This genre of photography, simply put, is the photography of buildings. However, there are many nuances within this simple definition. Architectural photography is often concerned with the accurate recording of structures.
	Macro Photography This genre of photography of Macro specifically designed for close-up work, with a long barrel for close focusing and optimized for high reproduction ratios, are one of the most common tools for macro photography.		Still Life Photography This genre of Photography is the depiction of inanimate subject matter, most typically a small grouping of objects. Still life photography, more so than other types of Photography, such as landscape or portraiture, gives the photographer more leeway in the arrangement of design elements within a composition.
